

Newsflash 1

Written by Administrator
Sunday, 10 August 2008 16:30

The last month of Autumn is an excellent time for gardening. The summer hiatus in the ornamental garden is over but temperatures should stay mild well into May.

There is some time left in the growing season for plants to settle in. It is a better planting time than spring, because the plants can establish themselves and prepare to put on a show as soon as the weather warms after winter.